Notes and Announcements

"Handbook Of Style in Use at the Riverside Press" has been issued by Houghton, Mifflin Company.

Doubleday, Page & Company will send "The Kipling Index," compiled by Eugene F. Saxton, to any one wishing it on the receipt of five cents for postage. It is a very complete index to all the stories and poems. Libraries will find it useful.

The Child Labor Committee has issued as a supplement to the Child Labor Bulletin a group of "Stories About the Other Child." Alice Hegan Rice, Arthur Guiterman, Mary Ellen Sigsbee, Zephine Humphrey, Sarah N. Cleghorn, Theodosia Garrison, Edwin Lefevre, Al. Friddy, Leroy Scott, and Henry Sydnor Harrison are among the contributors. The pamphlet may be procured from the committee for 15c.

The United States Bureau of Education has issued as Bulletin no. 51, 1913, "Education of the Immigrant." The bulletin is made up of extracts from papers read at a conference of the New York-New Jersey committee of the North American Civic League for Immigrants, and contains discussions of: Domestic Education of the immigrant; Immigrants in labor camps and isolated communities; Education of the immigrant child; Education of the immigrant adult; Evening schools for foreigners.

Doubleday, Page & Company are to publish a series of plays to be known as the "Drama League series." They are to be modern plays selected for publication with the approval of the Drama League. The series was introduced with two volumes, "Kindling," by Charles Kenyon, and "One Thousand Years Ago," by Percy Mackaye.

We have in this country no official censorship of books, yet there are semi-official and private censors that sometimes make discriminations. Such a discrimination is the refusal on the part of New York newspapers to accept advertising for Miss Cristabel Pankhurst's book, "Plain Facts About a Great Evil." The book is published by the Sociological Fund of The Medical Review of Reviews, 206 Broadway, New York City. Some of its sponsors are Norman Hapgood, Charlotte Perkins Gilman, Dr. Frederick C. Howe, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, and Mrs. Frederick K. Nathan.

In considering the Woman movement of the last hundred years, Current Opinion says that there are four books that "stand out in English literature as milestones in its intellectual progress." These four books are: Mary Wollstonecraft's "Vindication of the Rights of Women," John Stuart Mill's "Subjection of Women," Charlotte Perkins Gilman's "Women and Economics," and Olive Schreiner's "Women and Labor." To this list they add as a fifth, Mrs. Gallichan's "The Truth About Women."

Woman Suffrage, we might note, has now been accorded the dignity of a place in History. The third edition of Channing's "Students' History of the United States," recently issued by the Macmillan Company, devotes one of the sections of its final chapter on "The United States in Our Own Times" to the subject, saying that there is now no reason why women should be excluded from the privilege, or denied the right—if it be a right—of voting, since "many women own more property than many men; many women are better educated than many men; and many women are more capable administrators than many men."

President Taft, too, in his recent work on "Popular Government: Its Essence, Its

NOTES AND ANNOUNCEMENTS

Permanence, and its Perils," published by the Yale University Press, analyses the case for woman suffrage as he sees it, saying:

"I will illustrate the point I am making if I say that women should be accorded the privilege, and given the duty, of voting, not because they have an inherent and inalienable right to vote, but because, by giving them the franchise, their own welfare or that of the whole body of the people will be thereby promoted. If the advocates of female suffrage can show that they, as a class, have been unjustly prejudiced by governmental measures or by lack of them, and that they could remedy this by their vote, or if they can show that by the extension of the franchise to women, either that the general Government would be better or stronger, or that the existing electorate would be improved in its average moral tone, its intelligence, its political discrimination, its patriotism and attention to political duties, they make their case; and they do so because they thus establish that the addition of them to the electorate is a useful means to secure the greater happiness of the individuals."

The A. L. A. at Leipzig

The American Library Association is to be represented at the Leipzig Exhibition of Graphic Art and Bookmaking to be held during the summer of 1914. Space has been reserved for the library exhibit, and the committee, says the A. L. A. Bulletin, will now "proceed to gather and prepare material. A considerable amount of material has already been promised; enough to make a very creditable showing and the committee feels much encouraged at the present prospects. More money for financing the exhibit is needed, however. About $1,200 has been subscribed by library boards, commissions and individuals, and the A. L. A. has appropriated $500, which is all its limited means permits. About $1,800 more is needed to finance the work in the way it should be done and the committee will warmly welcome additional contributions. Of course material prepared for Leipzig will be available for San Francisco, 1915, and it is plain that the A. L. A. must have a good exhibit at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition."

How Language Grows

The New Standard dictionary is a work of 450,000 words. The introduction gives some interesting notes on the sources from which these words come, for English is a very live language and birth and death are incidents in its progress. Dialectical terms are a source of enrichment to the language, say the editors, and many such that come into general use are included in this dictionary. This number of words is augmented by territorial growth. Words in common use in the dependencies of the United States and Great Britain are taken into the language of their mother countries.

Dialect story writers popularize such terms. Hall Caine, Crockett, Ian Mac-laren and Barrie are given credit for introducing Manx and Scotch terms. The Irish revival is making popular many Celtic words and phrases.

Latin and Greek, tho classed as dead languages, are still making contributions to English in the fields of art and science. French words are constantly being anglicized. Examples are: chauffeur; garage; limousine; massage; sabotage.

Science is steadily contributing new words. The discovery of radium, and the perfection of flying machines have added whole new classes of words to the vocabulary.

Exploration and travel enrich the language. Theodore Roosevelt, always a coiner of telling phrases, used many unfamiliar Anglo-African words in his "African Game Trails" which the editors have incorporated into this dictionary.

New commercial ventures and the progress of manufacturing interests add new words every year.

Slang is given due credit, for, as the editors say: "If the living power of the English Language is to be maintained it must continue to embrace the best that it can find in the common speech, as by natural processes it has done in the past." Therefore the curious may learn from this dictionary the slang meaning of hike, hump, jag, beat it, dead-beat, nifty, and spug. In this connection the dictionary offers an opportunity for interesting comparisons. For instance, the word hump—a verb—which in American slang means to hurry, means in English slang to vex; in Australian slang to carry a pack on the shoulders.

Edwin Ginn and World Peace

Edwin Ginn, school book publisher and founder of the International School of Peace (now the World Peace Foundation), died on January 21, 1914, in Winchester, Mass., at the age of 76. Mr. Ginn entered on his career as a publisher shortly after graduating from Tufts College, beginning with Craik's "English of Shakespeare," and following shortly after Allen's "Latin Grammar," and Goodwin's "Greek Grammar." Hudson's Shakespeare, and Wentworth's Geometry are other standard works that have carried his imprint. At one time D. C. Heath was associated with Mr. Ginn and his brother Fred B. Ginn, the firm being known as Ginn, Heath & Company. In 1885 this partnership was dissolved and the firm name since that time has been Ginn & Company, a name that has stood for the best in school book publishing.

Edwin Ginn was a philanthropist and a practical promoter of housing reform, but it is perhaps as an advocate of peace that he will be longest remembered, for an endowment fund of $1,000,000 is left by his will to the World Peace Foundation, of which he was the founder and to which he had given annually $50,000. He had been associated, too, with the Mohonk conferences since their establishment, and was at the time of his death a member of the Executive committee. He had devoted himself to the work of educating of the world for peace—a work which through his generous gift will still go on.

Abbreviations of Publishers' Names.

Abbreviations of publishers' names will be found in the Publishers' Directory at the end of the Index. This directory is revised with each number of the Index and the latest issue should be consulted for addresses.

Names Used as Headings.

Entries are made preferably under the author's real name, but under the pseudonym, when the real name is not known or rarely used, under names of editors of compilations, under names of countries, states or cities which are treated as authors of their publications and of law reports, under names of societies or conventions as authors of their transactions, journals, reports, and collections, under names of churches as authors of liturgies, hymn-books, catechisms, etc (local churches, under name of place), under Bible when the book is a text or a paraphrase of any part of the Bible. Entries are made under the first word of the title, not an article of anonymous works, compilations published under collective titles, periodicals, and year-books. Translations, abridgments, and indexes, are put under the original work.

Parts of Names Used as Headings.

English compound names are put under the first part. English surnames beginning with a prefix are put under the prefix, in French names, under the prefix excepting the preposition de and d', in all other languages, and in French names beginning with de or d', under the name following the prefix. British noblemen are put under their titles, bishops under their family names, members of royal families, canonized persons, and members of religious orders under their first names.

Prices.

Educational and technical books, and other books sold at a limited discount and commonly known as net books have an asterisk (*) before the price.

When a price is changed, the book is recatalogued and designated (corr price) in the current number of the Index whatever may be the date of its publication.

Library of Congress Cards.

Numbers to be used in ordering the printed catalog cards of the Library of Congress are given at the end of the main (author) entry of each book. In many government publications, however, for which only subject entries are given, these numbers are attached to the subject entries.

When a book is entered before the Library of Congress card number can be procured, it is entered in a succeeding issue of the Index with the order number attached. It will be necessary, for example, to look in the current issues of the Index for the numbers of some books that were published in the preceding year and catalogued in the Index for that year.

In ordering cards by these numbers, the numbers should be arranged in columns in increasing order of the numbers. The number of copies wanted should be indicated after the card numbers with a slanting line between, e.g., 5-2850/4. The price of cards ordered by number is 2c for the first copy and 7/10c for each additional copy. For further information apply to the Card Section of the Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.
